new philanthropy. She has a theory that while music has charms to soothe te savage breast, it is peculiarly efficient in reforming the criminal tendencies of convicts.

tion of the Higher Life.

In working out her ideas she has been corresponding with prisoners in various of the Western and Southern States who profess a fondness for music. She has given musical instruments, music and encouragement to these "convict friends," as she calls them, in the hope that love for a new art would work their moral reformation.

Just a Side Issue.

"My interest in prisoners and their musical training," says Mrs. Sutro, "is perhaps a side issue of my other hobby -prison reform. I believe that the energies and tastes of convicts, properly directed, can do more to turn our penitentiaries and reformatories into facother agency I can think of. I don't believe in crushing the worm beneath the foot, in shutting up the malefactor and using the forces of routine and re-straint to turn him into a fiend.

"I want to see the benefit of the re fining influence of art and culture accorded our prisoners. Above all, I want to see them given the advantage of musical training.

"Some months ago I received a letter from prisoner No. 10,083 in one of our western prisons. He told me that after reading my book, "Milestones on Love's Pathway." he had believed I would have enough sympathy with his condition to gratify a longing of his. He Wanted a Mandolin.

"I love music, but I have never had an opportunity to learn to play any musical instrument. Now I have time hanging on my hands-time to mope, and I grow sour and savage if I let myself—and, if I had a mandolin, for instance, time to learn something new and pleasurable. Will you give me a mandoline?

"I cent my new friend a mandolin post-haste, and his grateful letters to me since then have been the most gratifying I ever received in response to a gift. The man writes: 'I love the music and feel myself a new man.'

"That's what music can do—make new men out of old—give them new hopes, new aspirations.

Experimented Out West.

"I've seen it work wonders so many times. Once, out in a mining town of Nevada where the children had run absolutely wild, and were what their 'schoolmarm' cailed 'wicked and unmanageable,' I taught them singing in their school and encouraged them to raise money for a small organ. They bought the instrument, went into the singing with enthustasm, and in a few months I found them transformed into loving, law-abiding little men and women. Before the music tamed them they were little reprobates.

"So, why shouldn't music work its good influence in the prisons? I believe it can, and, so far as I have tried it, I believe it has."

Mrs. Sutro has sent guitars and fiddles to numerous prisoners who have made their wishes known to her, and she feels that her gifts have been "real agents of good, and in their small way have proved what art and music generally would do for our law-breakers."

IRISH FOOTBALL TEAM IS HERE

myself-and, if I had a mandolin, for The Famous "Galtees" Come to Meet the Kickhams at Tipperary Men's Carnival in Celtic Park Week from Sunday.

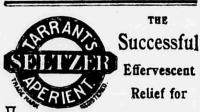

> surprise in store for those who will visit their athletic carnival and picnic on July 16 at Celtic Park. It is no other than a real "greenhorn" Irish football team, the "Galtees," fresh from the Ould Sod, and ready to kick as fine a game of Gaelic ball as ever was seen in these parts. They are a husky bunch of young "Tips," as rugged as the famous mountains after which they are named. The captain of the team is John Morrissey, grand-nephew of his famous namesake, who made a reputation for himself in the ring and in the halls of statecraft in this country generation ago.

The team arrived here without any flourish so that the wilv and vigorous Kickhams, who are to be their adversaries on the 16th, should be taken by surprise. The "Gaitee Boys," as they are called, have been kloking the leather globe out of shape for several days in a Bronxvilla patch without many persons being the wiser. When the news that the Galtees were here and working hard leaked out to-day it caused considerable surprise in Irish athletic circle, because the Tipperary Men's Association had pronosed a big reception down the bay. This was discreetly cut out at the last moment.

There will be a 100, 300, 600, 830-yard and mile race run under the A. A. U. rules. The football match between the two teams of "Roaring Tips" will be under Gaelic Club regulations. John J. McHugh, of No. 412 East Fiftieth street, is receiving entries.
